The Blue Checkmark on BscScan represents a token or project of public interest. The token page with The Blue Checkmark is also displayed first and more prominently during a search on BscScan, prioritizing a genuine token while showing all tokens with similar names.

What are the requirements to obtain The Blue Checkmark?

BscScan evaluates multiple factors but not limited to the criteria below in determining if a token project is of the public interest :

- The contract source code must be verified
- The token project must represent a known & public interest project
- The token project must maintain a working website with active social profiles and communication channels
- The token project has operated for a period of time and achieved certain milestones
- The token projects remains active and has ongoing on-chain activities
- The token project is well known and often interacted.

Not all public and well-known projects on BscScan awarded the Blue Checkmark.
